One Blood

The series question: "And who is my neighbor?" (Luke 10:29)

ACTS 17:24 God, the One who made the world and all things in it, this One being Lord of Heaven and of earth, does not dwell in temples made by hand, 25 nor is served by hands of men, as having need of anything. For He is giving life and breath and all things to all.

26 And He made every nation of men of one blood, to live on all the face of the earth, having determined fore-appointed seasons and boundaries of their dwelling,

27 to seek the Lord, if perhaps they might feel after Him and might find Him, though indeed He not being far from each one of us.

28 For in Him we live and move and exist, as also some of the poets among you have said, For we are also His offspring.

Follow along

1. What does Paul say God gives "to all"?

2. Why would "one blood" have been a hard word for a proud Athenian audience?

3. Paul quotes their own poets. What does that tell you about how he started the conversation?

4. Name things that are true of every person in this room before anyone says what they believe.

5. When you meet someone, what do you notice first: what you share, or what separates you?

6. If God is "not being far from each one of us" (Acts 17:27), who have you treated as being far from God?

7. If you really believed "one blood," which of your opinions about other groups would have to change?

THE ONE QUESTION

What is true of every person in this room?

1. Who did you meet this week whose blood is your blood?

The empty chair. Every week one chair at our table stays empty. It is for the person you would never invite.
